THE WOMAN SUFFRAGE PARTY

ITS AIM

THE ENROLLMENT OF 100,000 MEMBERS THIS YEAR
AND THE ATTAINMENT OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN THE STATE OF NEW YORK WITHIN FIVE YEARS

LEGISLATURE AND WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

On the whole the legislative year of 1910 has been one whose influence will be felt in every civilized land. It has been a year to test one's faith in democracy and in men. It must be remembered that Universal Suffrage for men is yet regarded as an experiment. To this country both friends and foes look for corroboration of their respective points of view. For those who oppose Universal Suffrage it is natural to conclude that all men have their price, because some have betrayed sacred trusts. From the numerous evidences that machines and bosses are the real sovereigns in this country it is as natural to deduce the conviction that there is no honest "voice of the people."

To those who view the future of Government through such pessimistic lenses a trial and conviction for bribery in the New York Senate and an investigation of insurance legislation in the House, the Pittsburg revelations, the Illinois Senatorship, the Ballinger investigation, the mighty battle for mastery between bosses here and there, and the general political unrest have united to produce a powerful testimonial in condemnation of democratic Government. Many men whose instincts should lead them to serve the public welfare turn away with disgust, for they believe their motives would be challenged and their efforts nullified by the inevitable machine.

The only serious argument against Woman Suffrage is found in the reactionary attitude toward democracy itself and such opposition will have been strengthened by the winter's developments.

On the other hand the true believer in democracy realizes as never before that a battle royal must come in this country before it becomes an established fact. The American people will never bend the knee before a throne, nor will they long remain silent before the growing power of political machines, and impertinent control of political affairs by giant corporations. If the legislative year has strengthened reaction against democracy, it has likewise furnished the evidence which has fired the determination and enthusiasm of thousands of Americans to throw off the yoke of "bossism" and to re-establish the purer standards of our earlier Government. The wheels of the mighty chariot of progress are moving on. "All's well, that ends well."

On May 26 the Senate, by a vote of 16 to 30, refused to discharge the Judiciary Committee from consideration of the Constitutional amendment resolution to give suffrage to women.

The Senators who registered their approval of women's right to vote were: Allen, Brough, Burlingame, Emerson, Heacock, Holden, Hubbs, Newcomb, Rose and Schlosser, Republicans; and Bayne, Gardner, Harte, McManus, Stillwell and C. D. Sullivan, Democrats.

Those voting in the negative were: Agnew, Alt, Brackett, Coats, Cobb, Cordts, Davenport, Davis, Gledhill, Grattan, Griffith, Hamilton, Hewitt, Hill, Hinman, Kissell, Mackenzie, Meade, Platt, Thomas, Travis, Wainwright, White, Witter, Republicans; and Caffrey, Cronin, Cullen, Grady, Harden and Ramsperger, Democrats.

Senator Frawley, Democrat, the only absentee when the vote was taken, stated afterward that had he been present he would have voted in the negative.

Senator Newcomb, who made the motion, said:

"I believe that sentiment in favor of woman suffrage is growing and that ultimately it will win."

Senators Travis, Caffrey and Brackett spoke in opposition to the motion, and Senator Bayne spoke in favor of woman suffrage. Senator Hill, who introduced the suffrage bill in the Senate, said he believed in the measure, but he voted against the motion.

As soon as it became apparent that the Judiciary Committees of House and Senate intended to smother the suffrage bill, the Suffragists united in pressing for a vote upon discharge in both houses in order that each individual member might be put upon record This was accomplished in both houses and, as it was never done before, the legislative attitude may be regarded as a distinct advance over that of former years.

The fact that progress has been made is sorry comfort since the women of New York had every reason to expect the submission of the suffrage question to popular vote. Instead the majority of the Legislature has openly expressed its contempt for women and spurned the culmination of their efforts of sixty-two years to win the ballot.

Could tyranny further go, or be more absolute? Is this the twentieth century, and is this the Land of the Free? Whom do these legislators represent? Not the women, surely, in thus denying them human justice; not our brothers, the voters, who by tens and by fifties are forming themselves into battalions to fight for woman's freedom, and by hundreds and thousands are assuring us on every side that our cause is just, and that by the eternal verities women are entitled equally with men to share the privileges of a voice in their own government. Apparently they represent nothing. Among them there are self-seekers, commercialists and politicians; where there should be honest men, political economists and statesmen. That there are notable exceptions we gratefully recognize; but the action or non-action of any Legislature must stand to the credit or the discredit of the whole body; and up to the present day the Legislature of New York has reason to blush for its treatment of the bills to enfranchise women.

We can forgive our ancient savage forefathers who enslaved women; they acted according to the spirit of the age; every stronger thing then conquered and fed upon the weaker; it was the survival of the physically fit. With some difficulty we can forgive our more recent American forefathers, who neglected to secure for woman, in the Great American Experiment of Democracy, the same voice in the government which they established so securely for themselves; at that time woman was a thing so dwarfed and stunted by age-long serfdom, by denial of property right and education, by the standards of man-made public opinion, as scarce to seem to merit the extension of full human privilege. But today, how changed! Highly developed and intelligent, educated, moral, earning her own living by the sweat of her brow, obeying faithfully the laws she has not made, bearing her full share of the burden of taxation over which she has no control, yet inspired by a wide vision of a sweeter and saner civilization that she would help to realize—woman asks for justice, and is forever and forever denied. Shame, shame, and again shame. By no effort can the mantle of human charity be stretched to cover this denial of twentieth century justice; it will go down through history as the last despairing attempt to maintain the despotism of sex, in the interests of the "machine." Let us not despair, but instead win from the vacation to which we go, health, strength and a purpose even ten times more determined to win our political freedom. We shall inevitably succeed, for it is so written in the long history of the triumph of evolution. The home, the woman, the child, call to us for protection; the noblest of our brothers look to us for help. "Trust in God, but keep your powder dry," has become a familiar maxim. Let us, too, trust in God, but spare no effort to strengthen the Woman Suffrage Party, for through it we are bound to conquer in this splendid fight.

A COMEDY IN CONTRADICTIONS.

Numerous headlines have appeared in the past week announcing that the recent Colorado election has been "a blow to Woman Suffrage," "death to Woman Suffrage hopes, etc." In fact wherever the question of Woman Suffrage is discussed, those who stand for the saloon and all that term implies, invariably declare their bitter opposition to it, upon the ground that should women vote they will all vote Prohibition. At the same time ardent advocates of stringent temperance laws announce their disappointment in Woman Suffrage because women have not all voted Prohibition. The women in Colorado in majority have followed a middle course. They have not pleased the radical temperance advocates for they have not rallied to the support of the Prohibition party; on the other hand they have not pleased saloonkeepers and brewers, for by the aid of their votes they have gradually increased the number of "dry" counties. That Denver is not yet ready to be "dry" is no more a blow at Woman Suffrage than it is a blow at man suffrage. The whole theory of the vote is that law should be based upon the will of the majority. Votes are not extended nor withheld because the voter espouses any particular theory, but because he has a right to have that theory counted, no matter what it is. When, oh when, will the masses of our people learn this fundamental principle of our Government.

The recent election so widely proclaimed as a blow to Woman Suffrage is in reality a glorious victory for both Man and Woman Suffrage, for it recorded the victory of the Citizen's ticket over the machine dictated tickets of old political parties. The election was one to inspire every believer in Democracy with new hope and courage; and in the mind of all such Woman Suffrage in Colorado has scored a triumph.

VICTORY IN NORWAY.

Another extension of Suffrage to the women of Norway has been granted by a large vote of the Parliament. The men of Norway now have Universal Suffrage in both Municipal and Parliamentary elections. The women have had the same suffrage, but it has been based upon a tax paying qualification. The Suffragists of Norway stand for Equal Suffrage for men and women. The gain which has taken place is the removal of the tax qualification for Municipal Suffrage. One step alone is now required to make the suffrage perfectly equal between men and women, and that is the removal of the tax qualification for the Parliamentary vote.

Bravo, Norway!

ECHOES

PROTEST MEETING

A story is told of two belated captains of the Woman Suffrage Party, hurrying to get into the line of the foot parade, who noticed two men watching the procession of women as it filed down the street; as the captains passed one man was saying to the other, pointing with his thumb: "What do you think of it all, anyway?" "Well, only this," was the reply, "that they are going to win out, by Jove."

Dr. Van Sholly, leader of the 27th Assembly District of Manhattan, tells of an elderly man in rough working clothes, who came up to her after the meeting was over, and told her he had supposed the movement for Woman Suffrage to be only a joke, but that now he knew better, and he wanted to join in and help. One by one we win them over.

A member of the College League, who was hurrying back to her headquarters, in full panoply of cap and gown, was accosted by a workingman, who asked her eagerly, in a sort of hoarse whisper: "Do you really think you'll get the vote?" "Well," she said, "we will if you will help us." Down into the trousers' pocket went the grimy hand. "How much do you want, lady?" "Oh, thank you, it isn't money that we need; just give us your vote, next election, to help defeat those legislators who are against us." Out came the hand, not full of money, but with a desire to shake the good old shake of comradeship: "Indeed, lady, you can sure enough count on that," he said.

Extract from a letter: "Will you kindly tell me whether by signing the yellow slips that were handed out in Union Square on Saturday, one is bound by any other obligation than just giving the support of our names? I know of at least a dozen women who are in sympathy with the cause, and who would willingly sign, attesting the fact that they want to vote, if by joining the Party they do not bind themselves in any way. If this is the case, please send me at least two dozen blanks." Here we see the good seed sown by the wayside, springing up, and going to bear a hundredfold.

The illness of our dear leader, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, is a very real sorrow to every member of the organization. We are cheering ourselves with the confident hope that it will soon be over, and that once more we shall see her bright and beautiful face amongst us. We miss her more and more, the longer she stays away; she is a star that differeth from every other star in glory, and none can fill her place.

NOTES.

Woman Suffrage seems to meet a ready response among the students of our High Schools. We have already three Suffrage Leagues among them: The Wadleigh P. E. League, of Manhattan; the Julia Ward Howe, of the Girls' High, of Brooklyn; and the Abigail Adams, of the Erasmus Hall High School. These gay and self-respecting young maidens are going to have a picnic in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, on Saturday, June 18. They will assemble for a box lunch on the picnic grounds, and will have speaking and entertainment in the afternoon.

Mr. Charles A. Dana, Assemblyman from the 27th District of Manhattan, was incorrectly reported as having voted against the discharge of the Assembly Judiciary Committee from further consideration of the Suffrage bill. It now appears that he did not vote upon the question at all. Our Assemblymen are not as willing as they were in former days, to be recorded as standing opposed to Woman Suffrage, or in any light which might be so interpreted.

Mrs. James H. Ecob, Borough Chairman of Queens, Woman Suffrage Party, together with Mrs. Mott, leader of the Third District, and Mrs. Hamilton, leader of the Fourth, will attend the convention of the Kings County Woman Suffrage Association, at Flushing, on June 7, and present the party work. Mrs. Kate Upson Clark will be the guest of honor.

The Suffragists of the 13th, 14th and the 15th Assembly Districts, of Brooklyn, are planning a picnic at Far Rockaway on the 7th of July. All welcome.

THE PROTEST MEETING

The Open-air Protest Meeting held in Union Square on Saturday, May 21st, was a remarkable event in many ways. Its purpose was to give public expression to a wide-spread feeling of dissatisfaction with the treatment accorded to the suffrage bills by the Legislature of 1910. From first to last it was orderly, dignified, enthusiastic and emphatic. Five great organizations, composed chiefly of women, working together in perfect harmony, called together, as by magic, the freedom of the park, the procession, the foot-parade, the music, the speakers, the audience and the enthusiasm. The automobile procession of the Woman Suffrage Party was easily the most spectacular part of the performance; aided and abetted by the automobiles of many other lesser organizations and of private individuals, numbering nearly one hundred in all, it gathered at 59th Street and swept down Fifth Avenue, with its yellow banners flying, like a streak of sunlight, as in truth it was. The foot-parade perhaps came next in public interest; not because of its great length and splendor, for New York is used to magnificent parades, stretching column after column, glittering in fine array; but because of the nearness and dearness of the marchers, our own women all of them; our mothers, our sisters, our sweethearts, all laying aside for the moment their conservatism and marching bravely on the dusty street for a cause that they held high and holy. It was a very moving spectacle, that of these women of the west side and of the east, graduates of the college and of the sweatshop, high and low, rich and poor, all as one in their desire to win power for womanhood; and to the credit of American manhood be it said that among the vast assemblage gathered to listen not one word or taunt or insult could be heard. There stood the crowd for hours, with every sign of interest and approval upon the upturned faces, and in the frequent applause; even though a miniature thunder storm came up, and the rain poured down upon them, only those went away who were upon the outskirts of the crowd, and too far away to hear the speakers.

From first to last the most perfect order prevailed, which was due not only to good police protection, but to a feeling that it was only a square deal that the women were asking, and that in America, if anywhere, a square deal might be hoped for. It was an occasion of historic interest. Never before has a disfranchised class called its friends and helpers together in a public square in New York City, and voiced its appeal for political liberty; the franchise has come so easily to our men, class after class, unasked, almost unheeded, that it has never been necessary. Perhaps in this fact may be found the explanation of why many men value their privilege so little. But upon woman is imposed the task of fighting for the ballot, if she would have it; so ironbound is the dominance of established custom, that her manifest fitness and desire for it avail her but little. Fight she must, and fight she will. If we read aright the spirit manifested at Union Square, our warfare comes now within sight of victory. Let us mark with a star the date of May 21st, 1910.

THE WOMAN VOTER will not appear during July and August. The activities of the suffragists will, during these months, be just as strenuous, but they will be more individual than collective, and will not need reporting. Make notes of any and all points of general interest, bearing upon the suffrage movement in New York City, and send them to Headquarters, I Madison Avenue, for the use of the Editing Committee of the VOTER.
